

U.N. To Debate Plot ... Arabs Hit Israeli Kidnap Try

By The Associated Press

The U.N. Security Council meets on Monday in an urgent session to debate Israel's attempt to kidnap Palestinian guerrilla leaders by pirating an Arab jetliner and forcing it to land in Israel.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali, the council president for August, called the meeting Sunday at the request of Lebanon, over whose territory the Israeli plane was intercepted on its way to Baghdad. Lebanon sought the meeting because of the "gravity of the incident," said Lebanese spokesmen at the United Nations.

Egyptian newspapers called on the United Nations to impose a boycott on Israel to force it "to put an end to its crimes which are spreading chaos to the international community."

Israeli jets streaked into Lebanon Friday night and intercepted the aircraft, chartered by the Iraqi airlines with a Lebanese crew, and forced it into Israel. The 74 passengers and eight crew members were questioned for two hours by armed Israelis before the airliner was allowed to return to Beirut.

Israel at first refused to disclose its motives for the piracy but Defense Minister Moshe Dayan later admitted the interception was mounted to kidnap four Palestinian guerrilla chieftains, including Dr. George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The Israeli plot failed because the guerrilla leaders had changed flights at the last moment as a routine security precaution.

The Cairo press blamed the United States for the incident and called on Arab governments to adopt effective measures against Tel Aviv. The daily Al Akhbar said the Arabs must use the "effective weapons" available to them for the battle against Israel.

The Soviet Union, a major Arab ally, "strongly condemned" the Israeli operation and characterized it as "blatant air piracy."

"The world will hardly agree to Israel's perpetrating such atrocities, grossly trampling on international law and freedom of air travel," wrote commentator Georgy Druginov for the government news agency Tass. "The stormy response to Tel Aviv's banditry and its unending playing with fire in the Middle East ... should caution Israeli authorities."

In Tel Aviv, opinion about the jetliner incident was mixed. Some persons in the street told newsmen the government had offended world public opinion. Others defended the Israeli strategy as necessary to protect the country from guerrilla attacks.

The chairman of the Israeli Pilots Association, Yitzhak Shaked, said his group disapproved of the action since the pilots are "fighting nonstop against air piracy and interference with civilian aviation."

State Lacks Consumer Protection Law

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of four articles on Nebraska state government protection of the consumer.)

Nebraska is the only state west of the Mississippi River which does not have a comprehensive consumer protection law.

Only five other states — all in the South or border states — have not yet joined the headlong rush into consumer protection which began in 1960.

But the state may be about to tumble into the field.

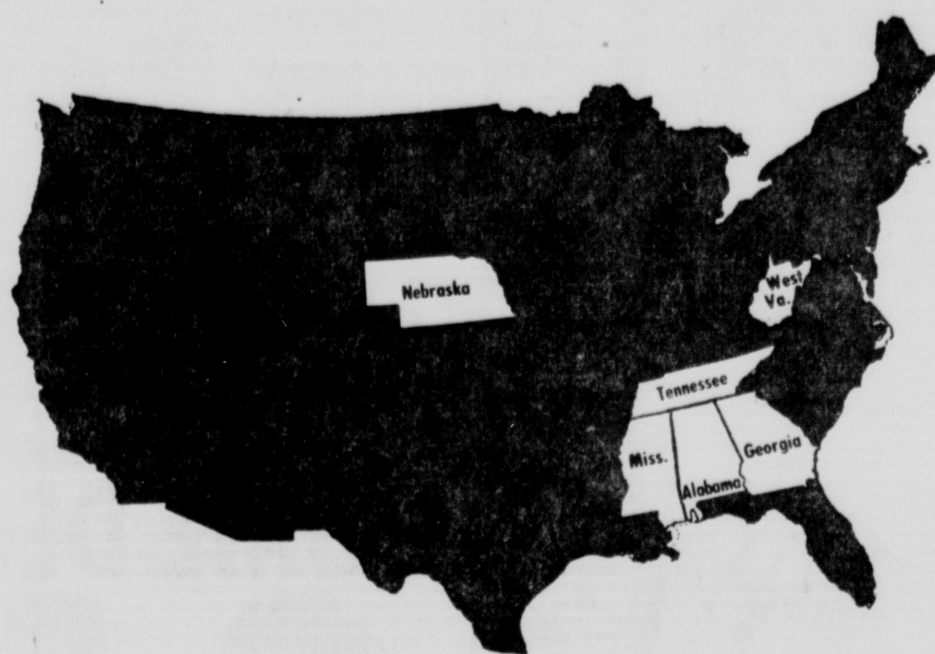

Proposed legislation, introduced in the 1973 Legislature by a study committee on truth in advertising, chaired by Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway, was held over for consideration in the 1974 session which convenes next New Year's Day.

A number of state agencies — including the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Insurance, the Department of Banking, the Department of Health, the Real Estate Commission, the Motor Vehicle Industry Licensing Board and others — already undertake some consumer protection activities.

And a constitutional body, the Public Service Commission, exercises consumer protection responsibilities in the regulation of 18 commercial activities, chiefly in transportation and public utilities.

"Actually, I suppose, almost any law involves some form of consumer protection," Assistant Attorney General Calvin Robinson suggests. "I suppose you could say the law against burglary is a form of consumer protection."

The Department of Justice involves itself in a limited way in consumer protection, with Robinson assigned the task by Attorney General Clarence Meyer.

ONLY STATES ... without comprehensive consumer protection law and Nebraska and five in Southeast.

The only states other than Nebraska which do not have a comprehensive consumer protection law are Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee and West Virginia. But four of them appear ready to enter the field.

In most states, the attorney general is the designated enforcement officer for consumer protection laws which regulate such activities as marketing procedures, advertising, deceptive or fraudulent sales, unfair trade practices and credit abuses.

Fictitious discounts, high pressure sales tactics, misrepresentation, misleading or deceptive warranties, defective or inadequate servicing and repair ... all are within the purview of consumer protection legislation.

As the states have moved deeper into the field, the old principle of caveat emptor ("let the buyer beware") has become outdated. Now it is the seller who must take care to provide the merchandise and service which fits the price.

Consumer protection legislation was chiefly designed to aid the poor, for it is the poor and the uneducated whose choices are most limited. They usually pay more for less, are burdened with high credit charges and are often sold inferior merchandise with deceptive sales practices.

Education is the first defense for the consumer. Illinois now requires a course in consumer problems in its public high schools, and many schools in other states include consumer education in their home economics courses.

But most states have decided education is not enough. Regulation has followed.

The National Association of Attorneys General recommends that the duties of regulation be placed within the office of the attorney general. Meyer disagrees.

"I have fought to keep this a purely law office," Meyer notes. "The minute you get the attorney general into an administrative function, you also put him in the position of issuing legal opinions on how he should do his own work, and that's wrong."

A pending consumer sales practices act in the Legislature would hand administrative authority to the Department of Labor, creating a new Division of Consumer Protection.

But another pending bill, a consumer protection act, went to committee proposing enforcement by the attorney general. It has not yet reached the floor.

Other suggested repositories for consumer protection regulation include the Department of Agriculture, the Court of Industrial Relations, the state's ombudsman — and a particularly intriguing possibility, the office of lieutenant governor.

The state constitution in Nebraska designates the governor, rather than the attorney general, as the chief law enforcement officer. And, beginning in 1975, the lieutenant governor will, in effect, become a member of the governor's staff after their election as a team in 1974.

Although no one likes to talk about it, the fact is that the enforcer of consumer protection laws could build a political future out of those efforts — a fact which may help explain the aggressive programs of some attorneys general in other states.

U.S. Bombing Continues As Deadline Nears

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — U.S. warplanes, flying some last missions before the congressional bombing cutoff, bracketed Phnom Penh with bombs Sunday in dawn-to-dusk raids that jolted the city.

While attention focused on the fate of this refugee-swollen capital of 1½ million, Communist forces opened a new attack to the north along the key road junction of Highways 6 and 7. They besieged the district capital of Skoun with heavy attacks that forced government troops to abandon some positions.

The move appeared aimed at strangling the provincial capitals of Kompong Cham and Kompong Thom, already cut off on the northern front. Skoun is 48 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. Asked about the Wednesday bombing deadline, Cambodian Premier In Tam said, "The end of the U.S. bombing is not a big matter because President Nixon said he will help our republic forever."

Talking to newsmen during a visit to the northern defense line, In Tam declared it would be a loss of face for the American people if the Americans abandoned Cambodia and "delivered the liberty of the Cambodian people to the Communists."

Associated Press reporter Matt Franjola said government artillery and sporadic machine-gun fire broke out less than one mile from the premier while he sat and sipped tea near the market of Prek Pnou village on the Mekong River nine miles north of Phnom Penh.

In Tam said government troops can protect the people after the American bombing halt Wednesday but "we must be careful about the enemy trying to build weapons caches and trying to infiltrate the city."

There are reports of rebel sapper units already in the city.

Col. Am Rong, chief spokesman for the Cambodian command, reported several caches of weapons have been uncovered in the city and more than 20 Chinese have been arrested for hiding weapons in their homes. He said the Chinese were under what he termed Communist influence.

In Tam said the government has no plans to evacuate Phnom Penh if the city is attacked.

"If the fighting comes near my house, I will go out to the bunkers and fight with the troops," he said.

He said the Cambodian

Small Plane Crash Kills Nebraskans

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Two Nebraskans were among four persons who died in the crash of a small plane south of here Sunday.

The Nebraskans were Steve and Anna Pettijohn of Seward.

The plane, piloted by Marine 2nd Lt. Martin P. Berry, 29, of the Pensacola, Fla., Naval Air Station, was headed for New Orleans.

Identity of the fourth victim was withheld until relatives are notified.

No cause of the crash was immediately determined but the area had been the location of severe thunderstorms Sunday.

government has not asked either of its neighbors, Thailand or South Vietnam, to intervene militarily. He said this decision would be made at the highest levels of the three governments, presumably referring to Cambodian President Lon Nol.

In a gesture of continuing American backing for the Lon Nol regime, U.S. Ambassador Emory C. Swank handed over to the Cambodian air force on Friday two American C123 transport aircraft, the first of eight.

Meanwhile, the Cambodian command claimed successes on all fronts, reporting its troops took advantage of a lull in fighting to expand their areas of control.

Highway 1 all the way to the Mekong River base of Neak Luong 36 miles southeast of Phnom Penh has been reopened by government troops, the command announced.

Local Search Warrants Near Record

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The number of search warrants issued in one year in Lancaster County will reach a new high this year, if the rate at which they are currently being issued is sustained.

Records in Lancaster District Court show that 32 search warrants have been issued so far this year. That total is only four under the highest number issued in any one year for the last five years.

The yearly totals for the last five years are: 1968, 14; 1969, 30; 1970, 21; 1971, 36; and 1972, 36.

Of the 32 search warrants issued this year, 21 of them were for drugs and drug paraphernalia, seven were for stolen articles and four search warrants named both.

Articles Found
In 28 cases officers found articles named in the search warrant. In only four cases were the officers unable to find the articles.

Of the 32 search warrants, 16 were obtained on the basis of information from confidential informers or "special employees."

Seven were obtained on the basis of evidence obtained through wiretaps and seven were obtained on the basis of other evidence, such as the statements of suspects being held for a crime.

Twenty-one of the search warrants were issued by a Lancaster County judge and 11 were issued by a Lancaster District judge.

None By Municipal Judges
No warrants have been issued so far by Lincoln Municipal judges, and according to Municipal Court Clerk Ken Wade, municipal judges have not issued any search warrants in the last five years.

All but one of the search warrants gave law enforcement officers the right to conduct the search at any time of the day or night, as long as the search was made within ten days after issuance of the warrant.

Sixteen of the search warrants were issued on Friday, Saturday or Sunday. But the largest number of search warrants issued on any one day of the week were the 12 issued on Thursday, ten of which were issued on May 31.

Of the 32 search warrants, only one was issued for a location east of 48th St. That one search warrant was issued for a residence in Havelock.

Ten of the search warrants, slightly under one third of the total, were issued for locations in an area bounded by 23rd St. on the west, 37th St. on the east, O St. on the south and Holdrege on the north.

Lincoln police have damaged two buildings this year when they used force to enter to search for articles named in their search warrants, according to Inspector Robert Butcher.

James Faimon, assistant city attorney, says,

Search For Little Boy Reduced

CHILLI, N.M. (AP) — State Police Chief Martin Vigil said Sunday that the search for the source of a mysterious distress call from a little boy calling himself Larry would be sharply reduced.

"After all the effort, the last five days, we haven't been able to come up with information that the situation is valid," Vigil said. "There's no information that there actually is somebody out there, and where this person might be."

however, that no claims for payment of repairs in these cases have been turned in to the city attorney's office.

Faimon said that only one claim was made in 1972 and that claim is still pending. He said the party making the claim was told to submit a bill for the damages but the bill was never turned in.

Payment of damages caused by Lincoln police officers would apparently come out of the Lincoln Police Department budget, according to Faimon.

Lancaster County sheriff's deputies reported that they have not used force this year to enter a building to conduct a search under a search warrant.

County Liabilities
Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas said the county is liable to pay for repairs in cases in which deputies do cause damage when conducting a search under a search warrant.

He said the money would probably come from the sheriff's budget or the county general fund.

"We are curtailing the operation, but certainly not discontinuing it," Vigil said. Radio directional finders will be set up in the Albuquerque-middle Rio Grande Valley area to continue trying to pick up the signal.

"There's nothing definite that the person is in New Mexico anyway. He could be anywhere," Vigil said.

He was asked again about the possibility of the affair being a hoax.

The incident started Tuesday night with a report from a California citizens band radio operator who said a young boy's voice was calling for help, saying he was in New Mexico. The report said the voice indicated his father had fallen over dead in their pickup truck.

New York Times
News Summary

Phnom Penh, Cambodia — By Wednesday, more than 400 U.S. jet fighter bombers and 150 B-52 bombers will be withdrawn from the Cambodian war by an act of Congress. Cambodia has a hastily trained and poorly maintained air force of 100 planes to take the place of the American armada, mainly single-engine propeller-driven aircraft, supported by artillery. Foreign diplomats and military attaches remain pessimistic, noting that the government is unpopular, the army badly led, and the population demoralized by three years of war. (More on Page 1.)

Namibia Rule To Be Debated

Windhoek, Southwest Africa — The territory of Southwest Africa, also known as Namibia, will get international attention next month when the United Nations Security Council debates whether to permit Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to continue a diplomatic dialogue with the Republic of South Africa, whose administration of the area was ruled illegal in 1967 by the United Nations. Black Africans want to rule the territory.

Poll Gauges Watergate Impact

New York — The New York Times has interviewed hundreds of people across the country trying to gauge the impact of the Watergate scandal on the public. The reports that Vice President Agnew is under investigation for possible criminal misconduct should only reinforce the basic impression that the Watergate scandal is hurting President Nixon badly.

Agnew Records To Be Studied

Baltimore — Federal agents are scheduled to begin digging into the records of Vice President Agnew's two years as governor of Maryland. Testimony is expected to be presented to a special grand jury in Baltimore Wednesday, when Dr. Morris Radoff, the Maryland state archivist, has been summoned to identify documents from state records involving Agnew and Jerome B. Wolff, a former assistant of Agnew.

Beef Shoppers Crossing U.S. Borders

San Ysidro, Calif. — Americans are swarming over the border into Mexico and Canada where beef is comparatively plentiful and low-priced. Shopping raids on Mexican markets have become "nothing less than a stampede," a customs official said. Merchants in Windsor, Ont., across from Detroit, said the demand for meat by Americans had not been equalled since the days following the end of World War II.

Grand Jury To Probe IT&T Actions

Washington — A second Watergate Grand Jury will convene Monday to inquire into possible perjury and obstruction of justice by government officials and officers of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Artists, Writers To Get Aid?

New York — The New York State Commission on Cultural Resources has proposed a broad program of self-help and public assistance to ease the employment and financial problems of many of the state's 50,000 artists and writers.

Fewer Addicts On Welfare Rolls

New York — The number of narcotics addicts on New York City's welfare rolls was reported to have been cut in half in 18 months — from a peak of 32,010 at the start of 1972 to 15,674 last June. Robert F. Carroll, the deputy human resources administrator, attributed the decline to "management overhaul" that, he said, has saved the city $18 million.

Phase 4 Hopefully Is Last, But Effects On Wages, Prices Unknown

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government hopes Phase 4, beginning Monday, will be the last phase in its wage and price control program, but experts still do not know how it will affect prices.

Food prices, partially unfrozen July 18, have risen faster than had been expected and the government isn't sure where they will stop.

"It's like cotton candy," said a Cost of Living Council spokesman. "It's pretty hard to put your finger on what's going to happen."

Since July 18, among the larger price hikes, the price of a dozen eggs has gone up nearly 33 per cent, and the price of pork has also increased.

East Coast bakers say the price of a loaf of bread may jump up to four cents because the price of wheat is increasing.

"We expected an increase... but food prices clearly have gone up higher than we expected," said Kenneth Fedor, director of the Office of Food Price Monitoring in the Cost of Living Council.

"We are concerned over the continued increase in the price of hogs and pork," he said. "We hope it will turn around or flatten out."

The economic controls, which began two years ago Wednesday, have limited wage and price increases to varying levels and with varying degrees of enforcement.

Phase 1, which began Aug. 15, 1971, lasted 90 days and froze wages, prices and rents, exempting only raw agricultural goods, interest and dividends.

The first thaw, Phase 2, began

Nov. 14, 1971, covered rents, wages and prices and lasted 14 months. Prices could increase to reflect business costs and wages could increase to average 5.5 per cent a year. Profit margins were restricted and big companies had to get governmental approval for large price hikes.

Phase 3 was a largely voluntary program. It began Jan. 11, 1973, retaining the Phase 2 guidelines under less strict enforcement. Rent rules were dropped and the government reserved the right to challenge any wage or price increases.

Health, food and construction industries were kept under price controls. In the midst of Phase 3, President Nixon placed ceilings on beef, pork and lamb prices on March 29, shortly before the week-long meat boycott began in April.

The second freeze, known as Phase 3½ began June 13. Wages were left unfrozen, but all food prices except those on the first sale of agricultural products, were controlled for up to 60 days.

As Phase 4 begins, the administration is withholding predictions of its results. No target for the rate of inflation by the end of the year has been set, partially because it is hard to predict, but also because economists fear setting a target figure and then having the program judged a failure when the figure isn't met.

President Nixon has said substantial price increases can be expected for the rest of the year, but he said the program should bring about a more moderate inflation rate by next year. The rate was 7 per cent during the first half of the year and the goal of cutting it to 3.5 per cent by year's end has been abandoned.

The administration says the goal of Phase 4 is to permit inevitable price increases to occur gradually without returning new profits.

Under Phase 4 regulations, small and medium-sized businesses may raise prices to reflect cost increases since the last quarter of 1972. The 1,700 largest businesses in manufacturing and service sectors with more than $100 million in annual sales or revenues must give the council 30 days notification of plans to raise prices.

Businesses with 60 employees or less will be exempt from regulations, as will be the lumber industry, judged to be non-inflationary, and public service industries.

Insurance and health industries will be under special rules and gasoline and other petroleum products will remain frozen until Aug. 19, and then will be under strict price ceilings.

Food prices, under special regulation until Sept. 12, may increase only to reflect higher producer costs. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12 unless the administration yields to pressure to lift them.

The 5.5 per cent wage increase guideline continues from Phase 3.

No date has been set for the end of Phase 4, the administration says, but Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent and others say they hope it will be ended this year.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said recently he didn't expect to announce a Phase 5—either he believes Phase 4 will be the last such program or he will not be secretary if a Phase 5 is announced.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, won't say when the program will end, but reminded newsmen Thursday that Congress' authorization of the administration's controls ends next April 30.

No Beef — Try Some Shark Meat

Tired of the high cost of beef? Try whinny wedges instead. Or how about a supper of ragout of rabbit with shark steak sandwiches?

More and more people are turning to exotic foods as a substitute for those old American standbys like hamburger and fried chicken.

Shark, rabbit, buffalo and horse are only a few of the foods turning up on the dinner table in these days of soaring meat prices and beef shortages. Some people are skipping meat completely in favor of things like soybean burgers that have been a staple on vegetarian diets for years.

Whinny wedges are the creation of a sandwich shop owner in Milwaukee, Wis. They're made of horsemeat, cut from a rib eye roll, fried in butter and served on Italian bread. The price for a medium-sized whinny wedge is 75 cents, compared to 90 cents for a more conventional steak sandwich with a similar amount of meat.

Ed Carroll of the J&H Markets in Portland, Ore., said he used to sell about 10,000 pounds of horsemeat a week in his two stores. Now, he says, he has customers for twice that amount.

Carroll said horsemeat prices have gone up about 12 to 15 per cent in the past year due to higher costs for feed and labor, but they're still cheaper than beef. For example, sirloin steak in Portland markets was going for $1.98 a pound; a similar cut of horsemeat costs 89 cents.

The French have eaten rabbit for a long time. It's called lapin and dressed up with all sorts of fancy sauces. Dale Powell of Tucson, Ariz., hopes Americans will get the same idea.

Powell recently bought a rabbit of 1,000 animals and sells 100 a week — 75 for laboratory work and the rest for the stew pot. He said he expects to double or triple his operation in upcoming months because of high meat prices.

"Rabbit is comparable to chicken," he said. "Actually, it's a lot better than chicken, because there's a higher meat-to-waste ratio." Powell sells rabbits of about four pounds each to a slaughterhouse which, in turn, gets about $1.25 a pound for the cut and cleaned meat.

Two West Coast chains are offering buffalo meat for the adventurous. "It's quite good and very much like beef," explained a spokesman for one store.

Buffalo meat used to be higher than beef because there aren't very many buffalo herds. But cattlemen have been withholding livestock from market because of the continued ceiling on beef prices and now it's steers that are scarce.

A check of one store showed buffalo burger and chuck roast for $1.09 a pound; the same cuts of beef brought $1.19 a pound.

Dr. Perry Gilbert of the Mote Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla., says he thinks rising prices may be just the thing needed to help Americans overcome any reluctance to shark meat.

Most sharks now are prized for their hides, but Gilbert noted that the fish has long been popular as a food in Europe and Asia.

"If you get people to try shark flesh and get over their aversion to the name, I think they'll enjoy it," he said.

"I purchased some blackfin shark meat at a local market for $1.35 a pound, and it was very good," he says. "In Japan, I've had shark prepared in as many as 10 different ways — all of them delicious."

The current vogue for unusual foods has been a mixed blessing to companies like Loma Linda Products of Los Angeles, one of the nation's largest producers of vegetarian "beef."

"We just can't keep up with the sales. We never expected anything like this," said Werner Carlson, vice president of marketing for Loma Linda which is owned by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

"Our Vita Burger is selling so fast we don't know what next week will bring," added Carlson. The burger's ingredients include soybeans, yeast, salt, soy flour, onion powder and flavorings.

Carlson says the burger has a 50 per cent protein content — "that's more than regular beef." It sells for about 85 cents for 12 ounces. When that's reconstituted, Carlson says, it produces about 36 ounces of "meat."

What do the ersatz foods taste like? According to Beatrice Smith, assistant professor of home economics at California State University in Los Angeles, "you actually don't know what you're tasting, but you do know that what you're eating is tasty and healthful."

Recipe To Please Palates

Please the palate and pamper the pocketbook with a selachian stew — that's shark flesh chowder for the uninitiated. Here's a recipe:

- Two pounds of shark (preferably mako or porbeagle)
- One-half cup flour
- One-half cup bacon drippings
- One-and-a-half cups chopped onions
- Two-thirds cup green pepper
- One garlic clove, chopped fine
- Three cups sliced raw potatoes
- Two cups tomato puree

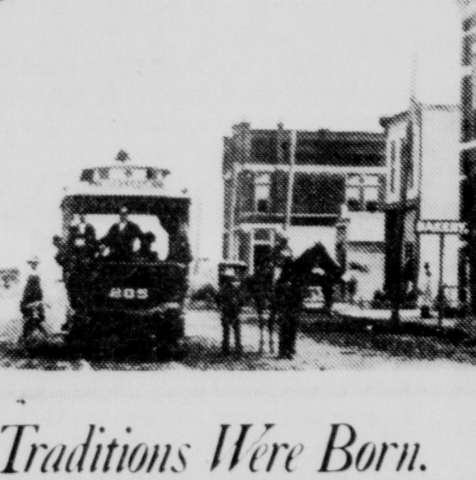

- Two sliced tomatoes
- One teaspoon celery salt
- One-and-a-half quarts water
- Three tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- Three dashes hot pepper sauce
- One crumbled bay leaf
- One tablespoon salt
- Half-teaspoon black pepper

Cut shark meat into one-inch chunks. Cook the bacon drippings and flour in large pot until flour turns brown. Add onions, garlic, green pepper and cook for five minutes. Add potatoes, tomato puree, tomatoes, seasonings, water and simmer for half-hour. Add fish, cover and poach for 10 minutes.

Houston Families Feel Police Were Indifferent

HOUSTON (AP) — Thirteen of the 23 lived here, in one left-over neighborhood, where the sleek brown Lincoln belonging to Wayne Henley's lawyer is clearly out of place.

Thirteen families anticipate mourning their lost sons, confused and bitter because they feel the police were indifferent to their cries for help when their children were first missed.

Quietly now they wait for word that the mass grave some 15 miles away, or the other sandy graves scattered in this area of Texas have indeed yielded the remains of their brutalized and slain sons.

They wrestle with the fact that tragedy can lurk behind the benign and fatherly manner of a likeable man, or behind the polite words of a neighborhood boy.

The homosexual murders came to light only five days ago when Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, told police he had just slain Dean Allen Corll, 33, to spare the lives of two other possible victims.

Later, police said, Henley admitted helping Corll molest and kill 24 young boys, having lured them to several homes and apartments Corll occupied over the last two years.

Then David Owen Brooks, 18, came forward to say he had witnessed many of the murders and helped bury the victims. There were 25 to 30, he said. But he denied he had killed anyone.

So far the remains of 23 boys have been exhumed from three grave sites. Only three victims have been positively identified, but medical examiners worked through the weekend at the task of identifying others.

Henley has been charged with five counts of murder. Brooks with one. Police resume the search for more bodies Monday.

But in this neighborhood, what the police do now is anti-climactic and sadly late.

When Fred and Dorothy Hilligiest, both 51, called the police on May 30, 1971, to say that their son, David, 13, hadn't come home, they were told he was probably staying with a friend. Call back the next day, they were told.

"That wasn't David's nature," the mother said, incredulity on her face. "I couldn't get over that they didn't get out and look for him. After all he's a human being, he's a child."

But in her heart, she said, "I feared immediately that something had happened to him. He wouldn't have stayed away from his own. He was excited. There were just four more days of school and we were going on vacation, and we were all looking forward to it."

Fred and Dorothy have lived in their one-story frame home in this neighborhood 15 years. It is freshly painted yellow, and its neat lawn contrasts with most of the other homes in this near-downtown section of Houston where people try more often than they succeed.

Wayne Henley lives just a block away in a white frame house with a sign in the front window that now says "No Trespassing." His grandmother used to bring little Wayne over to the Hilligiest house to play with little David a decade ago.

"It showed that they cared who he played with," Dorothy Hilligiest says. "They cared how he grew up. But somewhere along the line, something went wrong."

The events of the past two years have done so much to challenge her sanity, her view on life, and her husband's.

Her eyes search for sense as she tells of running into Wayne Henley the many times over the last two years, of his politeness in asking if she had heard anything of David yet, of his attempts to comfort her and reassure her.

"He always seemed so interested and sincere. I could tell he had been drinking," she said. "He would ask if we had heard anything, and he would look off into the distance. Looking back I can see he was carrying a burden he was trying to sedate."

The Hilligiests have raised six children in that house. Two boys remain. Mrs. Hilligiest recalls with quiet horror that after David's disappearance, Wayne Henley once suggested obliquely that he might take Gregory, 12, fishing with him some day.

The Hilligiests have spent thousands from their meager funds in their search for their son. They offered a $1,000 reward, had circulars and pictures printed, hired a private investigator. Fred made repeated trips to Freeport, 50 miles south, to check out any and every clue.

How could 13 boys whose paths crossed in school, on the streets, at a candy shop, a swimming pool, disappear without raising a general alarm?

Dorothy says, "I think the police did something. But they could have done more. I knew my boy wasn't a runaway. But they class the very young and adults as missing persons. Teen-agers are runaways."

That's part of the answer. Also, the disappearances occurred over more than a two-year time span. And, finally, while children in a neighborhood know one another, quite often the families do not.

So it was that one by one, two by two, the toll grew.

The official police stance is that with over 5,000 runaway reports a year in Houston, they have neither the staff nor the time to give any one case more than 30 days of checking before it is put in the inactive file.

Frustrated, the Hilligiests turned to their own resources and called in a private detective.

The investigator turned up a number of possible clues, including several tales from a girl — people buried alive, one boy buried in sand up to his neck. Some of the burials were at a beach. Others in what she said was a garage.

But when investigators were sent out with her she couldn't find the garage.

Fred Hilligiest's tanned and weathered face is marked by disbelief as he tells of passing on the investigator's findings to a police inspector.

"Private investigators are for rich people," Hilligiest says the inspector told him. "Then he turned to his secretary and said, 'Check him and see if he's licensed.'"

He wasn't, and Fred Hilligiest remembers: "I was shocked that they would go to the expense to prosecute him, but they couldn't afford to go out and look for our boy."

This whole summer we felt so heavy-hearted," Dorothy Hilligiest says. "We kept our hopes up. We told ourselves that people get to feeling different around the holidays. Maybe we'd hear something Christmas. Then maybe Easter. Maybe when school starts. We tied everything to the seasons."

And finally Wednesday. Dorothy had just returned from the funeral of a sister. Someone called and said David's name had been mentioned in the television news. She called the channel. They said call the police.

This time she wasn't switched to the missing persons bureau. This time she was switched to homicide.

They had already pulled David's file, she recalled. The officer on the other end sounded shaken. He said he wished that she didn't have to hear it this way, that they were sending a man out with the word.

Dorothy recalls saying only, "Oh my god. What's going on?" And her voice breaks and trails off when she remembers the officer saying, "homosexual."

"He said the Henley boy told us that," and she responded, "Why, he's our neighbor boy."

The officer was surprised at that. And when Dorothy told him there was another neighborhood boy with David when he disappeared, the officer said they would have to question Henley again about that.

"Everything began to spin through my head," she says. "About 2:30 in the morning we went out to where the bodies were found. We just had to do something, know something. We still haven't heard anything."

David's body has not been positively identified.

When David disappeared, he was in the company of Gregory Winkle, 16, "Malley" to his mother. Selma Winkle lives a block from the Hilligiests, two blocks from the Henley house.

She once worked in a candy factory in the neighborhood. The foreman was Dean Allen Corll, whom she remembers as "a likeable, gentle man."

The candy shop was across the street from an elementary school and the children would come to the door when school was out asking for scraps of the Mexican candy. Her son, Malley, worked there, too, washing out the vats and cleaning up the pieces of broken candy.

For the last 4½ years she has worked as a practical nurse at the Sharpstown General Hospital. She learned nursing while taking care of her late husband before he died of an hereditary nervous disorder.

But because of the night work she didn't see much of Malley. He would always leave notes saying where he was going, when he would be back.

Once he even left her a note with his Mother's Day gift. In a childish scrawl the note said, "This $10.00, well $5.00 of it is for Mother's Day gift, not for bills, for something you want. Spend it on yourself! This doesn't come out of my money I owe you. This is your Mother's Day gift. I didn't know what to buy you. I love you!"

On the Memorial Day when Malley and David Hilligiest disappeared Malley had left no note. After all, he was only going swimming.

Minister Preaches Forgiveness

HOUSTON (AP) — Elmer Wayne Henley's family minister prayed with the youth in the Pasadena jail on Saturday and preached a Sunday sermon on compassion and forgiveness.

"We don't realize we have been forgiven much," the Rev. Matt Chambers told the congregation of the Fulbright Methodist church. "When God's love prevails in our lives, we are freed of our fears, we are freed of our anxiety."

The Rev. Mr. Chambers said that Henley, charged with killing five of 23 teen-agers as part of a homosexual pandering and murder ring, is a member of the church, as are his mother and two brothers.

He said Henley, 17, often talked with him about the heavy weight of responsibility he felt for earning part of the living for his mother and brothers, the minister said. The youth quit school in the ninth grade to go to work.

"I have tried to think of anything he might have done or said to indicate he was troubled like this and I can't think of a single thing that would lead me to believe he was involved in anything outside the law," the minister said.

"But you take a boy — a sensitive boy, I would say — and he takes on such responsibility at an early age, this would cause an upheaval in a boy's life," the Rev. Mr. Chambers said.

Henley was quite active in a church recreational program last fall.

"He was just one of the crowd. When he was on the playground or in the fellowship hall with the other kids, he was no different from any boy," the Rev. Mr. Chambers said.

Henley lives with his mother and two brothers five doors away from the church in a run-down neighborhood. Diagonally across the street from the church are the Ben Hur Apartments, where two boys whom Henley is accused of killing, Marty Ray Jones and Charley Cobble, lived. The Rev. Mr. Chambers, 46, lives there, too.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Ever hear of Franklin, Nebraska? If not, don't be too alarmed as there are undoubtedly a rather large number of towns in Nebraska you have not heard of. Just drive in the country off the beaten path and you will see their names, a few miles this way and that from the route you are traveling.

Franklin is a small town, official population of 1,183, located on Nebraska Highway 10 at its intersection with Highway 136 serving a south central tier of Nebraska communities. It is too bad all of us do not have more time to learn about the state in which we live and its people.

It was a small thing that was noticed in Franklin but maybe it helps to explain something about life in this part of the country. Despite its size, Franklin still has a hotel where you ring a bell at the front desk if you want service.

We imagine that the "desk clerk" may well be many other things, such as the cook in the kitchen, the maintenance man, etc. He or she, as the case may be, might even be the owner, although we learned nothing factual about all this.

On the front desk was a listing of offerings at the local theater. Not only was it somewhat surprising that the town had a theater, but its bill of fare was pretty good, all first-run and recent movies.

Also listed was the time of showings. But of three dates late in August no attraction was listed and the explanation was: "See You at the County Fair."

For the county fair, the theater is simply closing down. That seems to us to show a little of the sense of values one can find so easily in this part of the country.

Imagine a theater in Lincoln closing for any reason such as that. In Lincoln, business goes on all the time, every day of the week and, in more and more cases, every hour in the day.

But business isn't quite the thing in a lot of places such as Franklin, where just living seems to take precedence. We fully understand that we are oversimplifying somewhat the situation we are talking about but the point is still a valid one.

Being in Franklin at night and only for a short time, we could obviously make no serious assessment of things there. But a short distance away, we had gone through a town that had died, with vacant and decaying store buildings, abandoned houses and only a few people still hanging on.

Yet, Franklin not only has a theater and a hotel, but a hospital, an attractive school, what appears to be a new and very attractive retirement home, a nice park and appealing buildings in its downtown.

There was time only to note the situation, not to find out why.

Franklin, however, was no beehive of activity after dark, nor did it glow with neon accessories. As you watched a few young people in the quiet of the evening, you wondered about the often-heard claim of young people that there is nothing to do in Lincoln.

Somewhere there might have been a lot going on in Franklin but it certainly wasn't obvious to the passerby. You wondered if there is not so much to do in Lincoln that it has spoiled young appetites.

Going or coming between Franklin and Lincoln carries you through Minden and reminds you that, despite all your years in the state, you have never visited Pioneer Village. It jars you a bit to think of how little you know of your close surroundings, especially in these times of international concern and highly developed transportation and communications.

Watergate Producing New Language Book

New York — If the Watergate hearings do nothing more than hike the lecture fees of a few senatorial hams, they've already proved one thing: The American language is taking a fearful beating.

Some words and phrases have been so badly mauled, they may never be the same again.

Senator Ervin tried to squelch John Ehrlichman on a disputed point by telling him he understood English because it is "my mother tongue." It brought down the house, and it's pretty safe to say that Mama Ervin never mangled English the way Watergate witnesses are wont to do.

Their fondness for "at this point in time" has brought more than one listener to the edge of nausea. That particular phrase has, in fact, become something of a national snicker.

So has "to the best of my recollection." If they aren't cranking it out automatically as some kind of legal hedge against future perjury charges, couldn't they just say their piece and let us assume that's how they remember it?

The most obvious, of course, if "inoperative." My Webster's defines it as "producing no effect, as laws that are not enforced." Press Secretary Ziegler uses it to explain that he (or the men who tell him what to say) goofed somewhere along the line.

Then there's "deniability," which my dictionary never heard of. The bright young men who plotted the Watergate scandal use it to tell how plans were hatched behind John Mitchell's back so he could say — if the jig was up — that he wasn't in on it. Lexicographers, please take note.

They may have a bit more difficulty defining "laundered money."

Orders to "deep six" incriminating documents was another new one to some of us. "Six"? As in fathoms? Is the Potomac that deep?

Now we discover we had the wrong slant on "national security." Up till now, a lot of us thought it meant keeping our country's diplomatic and military secrets from unfriendly foreign powers.

"Privilege" is getting a new connotation, too. Especially when it has a "Presidential" in front of it. And it may be years before anyone comes up with a definition of that phrase that everybody can live with.

Which brings us to "leaks" and "plumbers," which brings us to what really started the Watergate mess in the first place.

I don't know about you, but if I were a member of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipe-Fitting Industry of the United States (and there are times it would come in mighty handy) I would take umbrage at this indignity.

The Overloaded Shredder

Waiting For The Chief

Police Chief Joe Carroll apparently holds the trump card in the determination of whether a pre-trial release program will be established in Lincoln. And the chief is pictured as reluctant to bring the issue to a head.

The program, which reportedly has worked with some success in Omaha and is getting stronger all the time, is designed to allow the release from jail before arraignment or trial of persons arrested for minor offenses. Law students would be used to investigate the backgrounds of suspects in jail and in cases where the suspects are deemed responsible, the investigators would recommend that the judge release them without bond pending arraignment or trial. The program would be especially helpful to suspects who cannot afford or who do not have easy access to an attorney.

Sponsored by the Lincoln Bar Association, the Lincoln program had won earlier approval by the State Crime Commission's grant review committee, but the application for federal funding was abruptly stalled at the full commission meeting in June when Carroll declared that he did not know how the program would operate. No progress on the application has been made since that time.

Last week the Region II Crime Commission voted to ask the chief by letter to study the program that has been delayed at his request.

The pre-trial release program is ready to be set in motion and has encountered little opposition other than the chief's foot-dragging.

We don't know why Carroll should necessarily have the last say in regard to the program, but since his opinion is apparently the key, it's hoped that he will quickly come to grips with the subject matter, form an opinion and state his case for or against pre-trial release in no uncertain terms.

If the chief chooses to remain silent, we think the proponents of the program should re-state their position to the Crime Commission and press for action at the next meeting on the application for federal funds.

Democratic Strength Up

Democratic State Chairman Hess Dyas' speech to the party faithful in Dodge County last week held good news not only for Democrats but for the two-party system and the voters of the state as well.

In the state-of-the-party portion of his wide-ranging speech, Dyas noted that Democrats are closing the gap between them and Republicans in state-wide registration figures. Democrats registered 13,000 more voters than did the GOP last year, he said, and since the time voter registration became statewide, the Republican majority has fallen from 53%-43% to 49%-46%.

And the Democratic Party actually provides more campaign funds as a party to its candidates than does the GOP, Dyas noted, although Republican candidates still enjoy a decisive money edge because large contributions are often given directly to them individually and not routed through the party organization.

The approaching parity in registration figures can be attributed in large part to the comprehensive drives undertaken by the McGovern people last year. In party, also, to the popularity of Gov. Exon. And Watergate undoubtedly has helped the Democrats and hurt the Republicans in registering new voters. These same factors in varying degree have probably also brought about the relative financial well-being of the Democratic Party with Gov. Exon's efforts and a promising future at the polls being especially significant in that respect.

What it means is a healthier Democratic Party and thus a healthier two-party system in which real competition across the boards will create more interest, harder work on the part of members of both parties, and a more definitive public discussion of the issues and will bring forward stronger slates of candidates from which the voters can choose.

ANTHONY LEWIS

A Learned Profession

Washington — Suppose that during the trial of Daniel Ellsberg a friend or relation of Ellsberg's had had a little talk with the trial judge, William Matthew Byrne Jr. He asked whether Judge Byrne would be interested in a job paying $42,500 a year, good for life and carrying great influence and prestige in American life. He did not make a firm offer but indicated that he might later — after the trial.

According to Ehrlichman, he did those things with President Nixon's approval. Indeed, the President dropped in to say hello to Byrne. Bribery happens to be one of the two specific "high crimes and misdemeanors" mentioned in the Constitution as grounds for impeachment. The other is treason.

Whether the evidence of the approach to Byrne meets the standard of proof required under the federal bribery statute cannot be known by an outsider. Perhaps time will tell.

What all of us may observe about that episode is the standard of legal ethics it reflects. Richard Nixon and John Ehrlichman are lawyers. When Ehrlichman was questioned about the approach to Byrne, he said he had "scoured" the canons of ethics and could not find "where I had in any way infringed on them."

Is that really the ethical level of the American legal profession? Thousands of lawyers have been in Washington this past week for the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, and the question has been very much on their minds: not the Ehrlichman-Byrne affair alone, but the involvement of so many Nixon administration lawyers in the crimes of Watergate, and what that may say about the profession.

It is always easy to attack lawyers. Shakespeare and Dickens did, and much of the public today probably thinks of them as a selfish, obscurantist, insensitive lot, without principle, on sale to the highest bidder.

Easy, but I think mistaken. Of course there are unprincipled lawyers, and lately a number of them have wrongly been in positions of power. Lawyers often do represent vested interests, arguing the case of the polluter or the monopolist without sufficient independent reflection.

But American lawyers, more than any others in the world, also act as public conscience, as

By DON WALTON

As word spilled out of Chicago and Kansas City that Oklahoma had been socked hard by the Big Eight for recruiting violations, the Cooper Theatre's marquee proclaimed: "Oklahoma Crude."

Now, even if they were a little below board in the case, it wasn't very nice to point it out so harshly.

But the Cooper wasn't the only Lincoln theatre which was moved to social comment last week.

The 84th and O drive-in felt impelled to characterize our war policy in Cambodia: "Live and Let Die."

Commenting on the scene when the Senate learned of the House's action burying the proposed congressional pay raise, the Douglas 3 scoffed: "Terror in the Wax Museum."

Most theatres, of course, seemed preoccupied with the dominant story: Watergate.

"It Happened One Night," explained the Plaza 1.

What did Liddy and Hunt and those other master spies do? "Take the Money and Run," the Vine said.

Meanwhile, what did the White House staff do? "Slither," explained the Starview.

Then came John Dean . . . with what? "The Sound of Music," the State suggested.

And, as everyone started rattling on one another, and the list of "dirty tricks" and "White House horrors" began to grow, and we could see the pettiness, the deceit, the poison spilling out from the Watergate witnesses, what was on view? "Pigs," snarled the West O. "The Animals."

And, of course, it all moved Chairman Sam to tell a little country story. "The Legend of

JACK ANDERSON

The Chennault Tape

WASHINGTON — The hullabaloo over the White House tapes has raised reports of another secret tape, which could settle a great historical controversy.

Excellent sources tell us that Anna Chennault, the Chinese widow of World War II hero Gen. Claire Chennault, was picked up on tape as she allegedly lobbied with the South Vietnamese ambassador to sabotage a peace conference on the eve of the 1968 presidential election.

This election-eve peace effort might have won the close election for Hubert Humphrey. Instead, Saigon issued a statement opposing the peace conference and refusing to participate. This made the abortive peace effort look like a last-minute political trick to save Humphrey from defeat. Humphrey now believes the Saigon statement cost him the election.

Was Madame Chennault responsible for disrupting the peace effort? The facts are in dispute, but this much is acknowledged by all sources. Richard Nixon's campaign manager, John Mitchell, had asked Madame Chennault to keep the campaign informed on developments in Southeast Asia.

This quest took her to the South Vietnamese embassy, where she spoke to then-Ambassador Bui Diem. Our sources claim the embassy was bugged and her conversations were secretly taped. It is known that Ambassador Diem complained to the State Department that his embassy was wiretapped.

The dispute is over what was said. Madame Chennault insisted to us that she merely sought information but said nothing about boycotting the peace effort. Our sources swear she was recorded as warning the ambassador that Humphrey would immediately pull U.S. forces out of Vietnam if he should be elected, that the communists would take over the country and that government officials would be executed.

Her alleged statement to the ambassador, given as a representative of Nixon, was communicated to Saigon. When Lyndon Johnson learned of the taped conversation, say our sources, he was furious. His anger became more explosive when a Nixon campaign aide, Robert Finch, accused President Johnson of announcing a peace conference before he had "gotten all his ducks in a row."

The enraged LBJ, believing the Nixon camp had upset the ducks in Saigon, put through a phone call to Nixon. Our sources say that Johnson declared he was still president, accused Nixon of instructing Madame Chennault to sabotage the peace conference and threatened to expose the whole affair on nationwide television. Johnson putatively referred to Finch as "this gunk funk."

Before Johnson hung up, Nixon was able to mollify him. They agreed that Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., would go to the South Vietnamese ambassador and declare that Madame Chennault was not speaking for Nixon. In return, LBJ agreed not to take to television.

But the damage had already been done. The peace-disrupting statement from Saigon, issued the weekend before the election, was never repudiated. And Nixon defeated Humphrey by a close one per cent of the vote.

FOOTNOTE: Humphrey told us he had been informed of Madame Chennault's alleged intervention but not of the Justice Douglas on the bombing of Cambodia, will it not feel just as free to ignore a Supreme Court order to hand over presidential documents? Or any other court order which it chooses to consider an invasion of executive branch prerogatives?

In a government of laws, not men, this administration's attitude toward the courts, the Congress and even the electorate is alarming. There seems to be no end to its power — or its contempt for the other institutions of government.

Justice Douglas should initiate contempt proceedings in behalf of all of us.

There is also a tragic postscript to that weekend of legal maneuvering over the legality of bombing in Cambodia.

Douglas based his order on a judge's duty to act to save innocent lives. Had his order not been overturned — and had it been obeyed — American bombers would not a day or two later have leveled two villages and slaughtered innocent men, women and children.

Those "incidents," of course, were described as "unfortunate." It was too bad it happened. It was a mistake. Very sorry.

Had those bombs fallen by error on an American bomber base killing the same number of people, the "incident" would have been a "tragedy." Congressional investigations would have been underway, and the nation would have been shocked. We have little regard for the lives of people other than Americans — a fact which allowed President Nixon to continue the killing in Vietnam for four years while extricating Americans from combat.

An anti-consumer coup d'etat appears to be under way in the ranks of the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council, which advises the secretary of transportation on auto safety.

Created by the motor vehicle safety act of 1966, the council meets annually to hear technical papers. Then it advises the transportation secretary what his auto safety policy should be.

At the 1973 "congress," General Motors executive Trevor Jones, an industry delegate, convinced the council to hold its 1974 symposium in conjunction with the annual convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE).

Later, however, some council members learned that the industry-dominated SAE would administer the entire congress. The auto men would arrange the program, fix hotel assignments and even decide which papers would be presented.

Council member Dale Hogue, a pro-consumer Washington attorney, dispatched a letter to Jones expressing his concern that the council would become "an instrument of industry."

"I realize I was remiss in voting for the resolution without investigating its ramifications . . ." Hogue continued. "SAE is regarded as an extension of the motor vehicle industry inasmuch as its main body of members is from the auto industry. . . Therefore (our) relations with the SAE should be at arm's length. . ."

Since receiving Hogue's letter, Jones is reconsidering the arrangement with the SAE. The auto engineers, however, are confident that when the dust settles, the automotive industry itself may well be telling the government what is safe and what isn't. They already have begun making hotel arrangements for the 1974 joint conference.

FOOTNOTE: Hogue confirmed the authenticity of his letter but refused to discuss it.

Youth Gunned Down From Belfast Auto

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A teen-age youth was shot to death in Belfast and a police post was hit by rocket, mortar and rifle fire early Sunday near the border with the Irish Republic.

The death of the unidentified youth, who was gunned down from a passing car, brought the fatality toll in the four years since British troops arrived to at least 864.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary claimed to have hit at least two of the guerrillas who attacked a post at Crossmaglen, two miles from the border with the Irish Republic. Five constables were slightly injured in the attack, which lasted more than two hours.

3 Die Over Weekend In St. Croix Violence

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix (AP) — A restaurant operator was shot to death Sunday in the third murder of the weekend on this Caribbean resort island, police reported.

It was the 15th slaying in less than a year on this island, the largest of the U.S.-owned Virgin Islands with an estimated 30,000 residents.

The body of Stanley Radulovic of Frederiksted was found on the beach near the Rainbow Beach Club, police said.

Dogs were tracking the killers of a hotel clerk and her 74-year-old mother who were beaten to death at their home near Christiansted about midnight Friday.

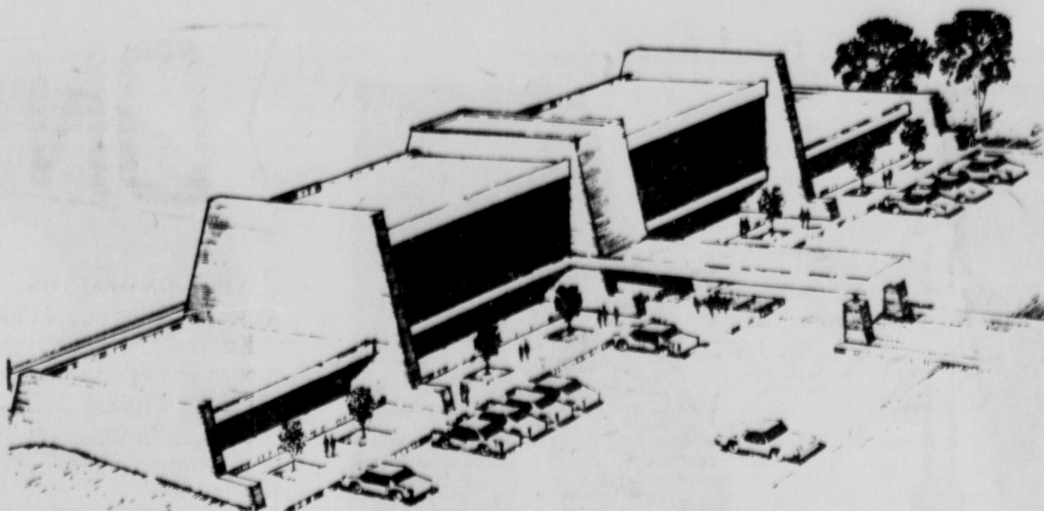

A jury resumed deliberations in the 10th day of a trial of five Virgin Islanders charged in the murders of eight persons at the Fountain Valley Golf Club last Sept. 6.

Hit Helicopter Lands Safely Outside Saigon

Saigon (AP) — A government helicopter was hit Sunday by small-arms fire on the outskirts of Saigon but landed safely, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

PLANS . . . outlined for condominium office building.

Condominium Offices Being Planned

Applying for the first time in Lincoln the concept of condominium ownership of commercial real estate, two local developers have made available previously closed option.

"Business and professional people have generally been denied the benefit of ownership in the space they occupy because of their limited area requirements. Under condominium ownership as used extensively in apartments, the individual can be a part of modern surroundings without the heretofore single option of leasing," according to Robert Rentfro and Crawford Pierce, the developers.

With that in mind, they will construct a $1.5 million, three-level professional office building between Pioneers Blvd. and Highway 2 at 33rd Street. The building, to be known as Pioneer Plaza, is scheduled for occupancy in June 1974.

Under condominium law, Rentfro said, the individual owner will hold title to a specific area within the building, and will then share with others in an undivided ownership of the common areas, including the two-acre site.

The strikingly modern building was designed by Thomas E. Bachtold and Associates.

Divers Work To Reach Sunken Liner Valuables

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Two divers worked 240 feet under water Sunday to try to reach an estimated $1 million in money, jewelry and securities sitting in four safes in the liner Andrea Doria.

The divers, Donald Rodocker, 27, and Christopher Delucci, 22, both of San Diego, Calif., planned to bring the safes out of the ship unopened and have them hoisted to the deck of their support ship, Narragansett.

Another ship, escorted by the Coast Guard, will carry the safes to Nantucket Harbor, 45 miles to the north.

In all, the expedition is aimed at recovering $4 million worth of valuables which were aboard the Italian liner when she sank 17 years ago with the loss of 51 lives.

The ship was bound for New York from Genoa and other Mediterranean ports, steaming through fog, when she and the Swedish liner Stockholm collided in patchy fog and darkness.

Associates. The building will include such amenities as sauna bath and handball court. It will have heated indoor parking in addition to the nearly 150-car parking area surrounding the building.

Extra-Standard Pay On Agenda

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday will consider a recommendation to alter the extra-standard pay schedule for the coming school year.

Although a general agreement on the extra-duty assignments was reached during negotiations last spring, the details were not finalized at that time.

The subject will be one of the matters contained in the superintendent's report to the board, which meets at 8 a.m. in the Public Schools Administration Building.

From grade school to grad school.

POSTCARD

Stan
Delaplane

And so we got off the good ship "Spirit of London." Woe is me! Back to tuna fish sandwiches after spicy Lucknow curry. Back to packaged Ding Dongs after a life of baked Alaska.

Good news: "Ebony has come home!" (A cat missing for two months.)

Bad news: "My baseball is on the roof. Can you get it down?"

No news (but not good news — never mind the proverb): "Your accountant called. He says the IRS wants the following papers."

There's no place like home.

"Seems like money don't last worth a cent," said grandma. "Ten cents for four pork chops!" She said the butcher would likely rob the poor box at the church given half the chance.

Beef was not a big item when I was mopping up gravy. (We were allowed to do that with a piece of bread. "Keep your napkin tucked under your chin," said grandma. "I've got enough washing to do around here.")

We got a lot of lamb: Lamb chops. Leg of lamb. Lamb fricassee.

Maybe beef wasn't too good. Not corn fed in Midwest feed lots. Corn went into hogs and hogs went into bacon.

What does the Federal bagman want? He wants papers on a house long ago bought, long ago sold.

I paid taxes to buy it. Taxes to sell it. In between I paid taxes just to hang in there.

I called the accountant and said: "Heaven only knows where those papers are. With the house sold, what did I need papers for? My memoirs?"

I said: "Easy come, easy go, Accountant."

He said: "I'm afraid they won't accept that answer."

Home is where you hang yourself.

My grandmother paid cash for the pork chops. Nobody had charge accounts. No Diners Club cards. No plastic from the bank. "Pay cash," my grandfather advised me. "Let other people do the worrying."

If he borrowed money it was for business. He never borrowed for personal walk around cash. He didn't run restaurant bills. No charge accounts at stores.

He knew where every dollar stood every day. The Internal Revenue Service never called him because there was no IRS. Income tax was yet to come. When it did, grandpa said it sounded like socialism to him.

Socialists didn't work. They wanted onions and threw bombs.

"Cash on the barrelhead," said grandpa nudging me in the ribs. "As the preacher said when they passed the plate on Sunday."

On the luxurious cruise ship, I lived like a lord. Morning coffee in my room.

"Good morning, sah. Did you sleep well?"

"Well enough, steward. You might check today and see if there's a pea under the mattress."

(I said this in front of the girl child. Home joke. The Princess and the Pea story. Got a pretty good laugh for a morning warm up.)

Now I get up and make my own coffee. What a come down.

Grandma said to the butcher: "Put in a piece of liver for the cat." Liver was given away free.

On Sunday we had roast chicken. Stuffed deliciously with sage dressing. Mashed potatoes with gravy spooned over them. Peach pie — grandma made it herself.

Sunday dinner was served at 4 in the afternoon. There was no TV. Radio was just coming in. After dinner my grandfather read the newspaper thoroughly.

He said if taxes went any higher he reckoned the country would go to the hot place in a handbasket. Grandma said, what was the world coming to? It made a person wonder.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Monday

When Aquarian actor Forrest Tucker was struggling for success, he was aided by the astrological counsel of the late Nella Webb. Tucker, sentimental and talented, told me this and said he never forgot it. Astrology and Aquarians have an affinity for each other. These persons are usually open-minded, progressive and willing to do their own investigating, often in the face of opposition from orthodox.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Strive to make amends for recent slight to family member. Create atmosphere of harmony. Refuse to be drawn into complicated conflict. Some of your fondest desires may soon become realities. Full moon position now emphasizes that fact.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be changing goals. Means what you thought should be attained may now take second place. You are going through period of self-analysis. Be truthful — and strong enough to avoid self-deception. Puck, Virgo may be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Add to knowledge. Read, write and advertise. Improve mode of communication. Let others know about your abilities — and product. You get more responsibility and chance for greater reward. Capricorn. Cancer persons could play significant roles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finalize transaction. Take inventory. Get money's worth. Tax question can be settled. Be sure you are not being charged for someone else's error. Do some personal investigating. Aries and Libra probably are in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Improve public relations. Be direct, but also willing to hear various points of view. Creative pursuits are likely to succeed. Check with legal counsel on any contract agreement. Your own judgment now may suffer through lack of personal experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Employment is in picture — your work, special efforts and relations with co-workers dominate. Recent resolutions concerning health also command attention. Avoid extremes. Digestive problem should not be ignored.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Full moon position accents romance, creativity, dealings with youthful persons. You socialize and make new contacts. You are able to give of yourself in a more meaningful manner. Sagittarius, Gemini could figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't skip essentials. One who advocates apparent shortcut is probably misinformed. Review and revise. Polish and perfect material. You will be given chance for greater recognition. Show at your best — not at passing mediocrity. Message will become clear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel, writing, new ways of expression — these are featured. You are likely to be dealing with restless persons. Obtain hint from Scorpio message. Delve into meanings and motives. Reject the superficial. Relative finally will talk sense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Luxury item can be purchased at bargain price. You find what you want — and you can enjoy it. Remember special anniversaries. Keep resolution about making home life more harmonious — and comfortable. Taurus, Libra individuals are in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your own personality is illuminated. You see facets of yourself previously obscured — even from you. Accent individuality. Get credit for what you do. Refuse to take back seat. Assert yourself. Push ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Work quietly behind the scenes. Unobtrusive approach now is likely to bring best results. You have opportunity for greater rewards. Capricorn. Cancer persons are involved. Clandestine meeting reveals unusual procedure.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a practical, courageous person who understands risks and usually is willing to take them. Some call you "daring." You do exude personal magnetism. But you are not careless. Your plans are made and you go to lengths to carry through on them. You attract persons born under Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius. December should be one of your most significant months of 1973.

State Official Calls For End Of Height Factor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Israel Packel has ordered an end to the five-foot-six minimum height requirement for state police applicants.

Packel said the requirement discriminates unfairly against women and applicants of Spanish descent.

Packel cited 1966 U.S. Census Bureau statistics that the average height of women to be 5-feet-3. The average height of Spanish-surnamed Americans is just over 5-feet-4½, statistics show.

There are 25 women and two men of Spanish ancestry among the 4,170 state policemen.

Doctors' Tests Show How You Can Actually Help Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to Inflammation and Infection. Also Get Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Rectal Itching and Pain in Such Tissues.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H®. Preparation H also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Summer Gaze Shifts To Torso

By BARBARA VARRO

Men became glum as hotpants and miniskirts began to fade and legs were sheathed in long pants. But fashion came through with new scenery for girl-watchers so they wouldn't have to spend the long, hot summer contemplating the sky. Their gazes shifted from the legs to the torso because of the abbreviated tops that are the rage on city streets this season.

As soon as the heat was on, girls started to go for bare essentials that exposed the midriff and/or back. Halter-neck styles are the most popular of the brief topplings, and most are worn braless.

The little tops — once restricted to the beach, backyard and other spots where sportswear was the rule — are showing up in offices and stores. We've even seen a few in church.

Critics of the barely-there styles say Chicago is beginning to look like a resort town rather than a sophisticated metropolis. While some people say the cool and ultracausal styles are making the city more scenic, others denounce them as too sporty and provocative for an urban setting.

"It's no wonder there's so much crime in the streets today. Girls are just asking for trouble," said one male. Another said: "A girl in a plunging halter top sneered at me as though I were a male chauvinist pig when I turned around to look at her. What does she expect when she's parading around in clothes like that?"

A woman said: "The exposed midsection and plunging back just don't belong in a conventional office. They belong on a beach or at a picnic."

The clothes seen on the streets nowadays are more casual than they've ever been in fashion history. More individualism in fashion, disregard for etiquette and women's liberation are among the contributing factors to the relaxed attitude in dressing."

BARE . . . essential look, modeled by Mary Fay, is the rage across the country.

Dress codes in offices, schools and other institutions have generally been abandoned during the last few years. And stress on sportswear and pants in women's apparel spawned a casual approach to style that is reflected somewhere.

Some of those who oppose the new casualness blame it on designers. But that can be refuted. Most designers of the bare-midriff tops meant them as sportswear or for after-five. It is difficult to put a label on a particular style stating exactly when and where it should be worn.

When a certain style catches on, however, there are broad interpretations as to what it is for and where it belongs — not to mention that the wrong people often wear it. So styles meant for the young are being worn by older types who appear ludicrous. And women with too-ample figures choose clothes that reveal what they should conceal.

In this anything-goes contemporary world, it's difficult to make a pronouncement about when a style is tasteful. Suffice it to say that a person should use basic intelligence and a little discretion and not wear something just because it is thought to be fashionable.

DEAR ABBY: Phil and I were married for two years, and I thought we had a great marriage. He was 23 and I was 25.

Then Phil went back to college full time while I worked and paid the bills. (I'm a surgical nurse.) It was working out fine until Phil became more than casually involved with a female classmate, and in a sequence of events they were both kicked out of school. (He had stolen a test and they were both caught in possession of it.)

Phil then transferred to another school. The girl also transferred with him. By the way, she's 21, divorced, and has a child.

I demanded a showdown and Phil said he "loved" us both and couldn't decide between her or me.

My pride was hurt, so I locked him out, and now, of course, he is seeing her.

I still love him and regret locking him out. I don't want to lose him, but I couldn't take his running from her to me.

Please tell me how to get him back.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: You could swallow what's left of your pride and ask Phil to reconsider, but after locking him out, I'd say you blew it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a working girl, 19, and I live at home. I have several younger brothers and sisters, and it is really sad to find that someone in your own family steals. That is my problem, and I don't know which one it is.

I have hidden my purse in my bowling bag, underneath my clothes in drawers, and even far back in my closet, but someone always finds it and helps themselves to some money. I have missed 5s, 10s, and even $20 bills. (They never take it all.)

dear abby

How can I find out who is guilty?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I know of no "traps" you can set, although I'm sure there are many. Why don't you put a lock on a drawer (or closet) and wear the key around your neck on a chain?

DEAR ABBY: I get so riled up when I read those pathetic letters signed, "Neglected Mother," or "Forgotten Father." They are from old folks who are not wanted by their children. Abby, I wonder if they have ever stopped to ask themselves why?

One day, many years ago, I came home from work and found my four children watching TV. When I poked my head into the room, they didn't even say hello. I was hurt and angry. Then I said to myself: "You fool! If you can't make yourself more interesting than that damned TV set, it's your own fault."

I admit, I used a bit of bribery in the form of peppermint candy and a few minor toys, but within a few days when I entered the house, there were hoots and hollers: "Daddy's home!"

Old people should consider that their loneliness could be caused by themselves. Many are excused for being difficult because of their age. Why? No one has a right to be difficult whether he be young or old. Old age doesn't give one the license to complain all the time (we all have troubles), to talk all the time and reminisce too much (other people like to talk about themselves, too), or to expect constant attention.

Old people should make an effort to be good company. They should also have a hobby, so they can enjoy being alone.

I am 60 years of age, and if I grow old and nobody comes to see me, I hope I am wise enough to realize it's 99 per cent my own fault.

CHARLIE IN ROME

DEAR CHARLIE: Loneliness for you? I'll bet against it.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Store Food In Can

What about storing food in an opened can? Probably it is the safest place there is for the unused portion of canned food, since the can was sterile when opened. Some foods, such as tomatoes, may discolor but that does not mean they are spoiled. Always refrigerate the opened can and cover it with foil or plastic wrap to prevent drying.

We care.

We care about conserving energy. Even though we're in the business of selling electrical energy, we don't like to see it wasted.

Here are some ways you can save electricity during the air conditioning season...

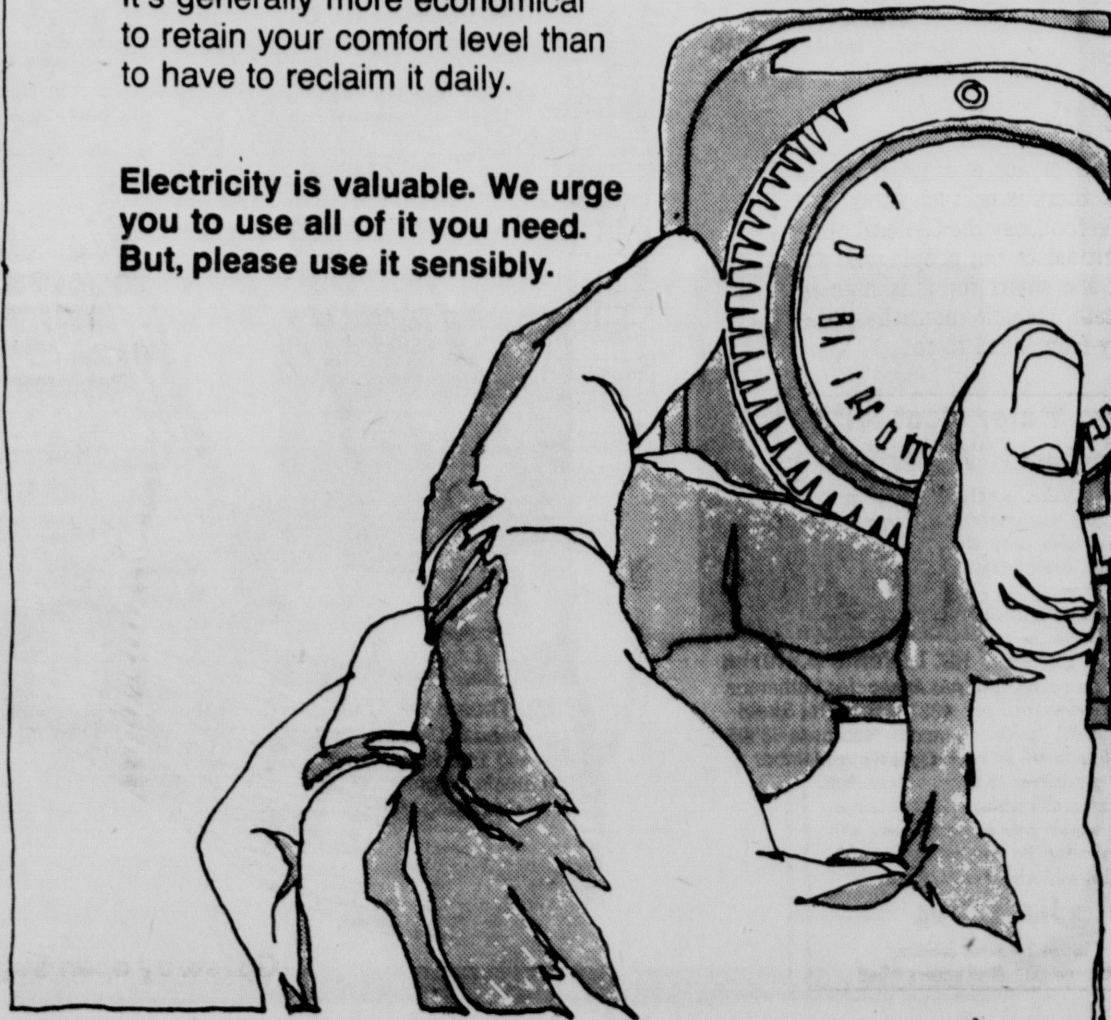

● Find a comfortable thermostat setting and don't change it. Every time you lower the setting, you raise the cost of operation. Operating your unit below 76° can cost you as much as 10% per degree.

● If you're going to be gone for several days, turn your air conditioning off. When you return, set it at your comfort level, not lower. A lower thermostat setting will not cool your house faster—it will simply make the air conditioner operate longer.

● Leave your air conditioner on at night. Studies show that a house, its walls, furniture and occupants begin to absorb heat when the sun rises and continue to do so all day. It's generally more economical to retain your comfort level than to have to reclaim it daily.

Opening lead - king of hearts.

This deal occurred in the playoff between my team and the Curt Smith team to determine which of us would represent the United States in the 1973 world championship. My team won the match handily but not before we were badly clawed on this hand.

Maybe I shouldn't have doubled five spades with the West hand, though at the time it seemed the right thing to do. I

This was a bitter pill to swallow, but matters got much worse when I heard what had happened at the other table. My teammates this time held the North-South cards and the bidding went in this odd fashion:

spade bid that stumped my beleaguered teammates. It is difficult to blame South for doubling five hearts, but declarer, West, wrapped up that contract without any trouble. His only losers were a spade and a trump.

So the upshot of the affair was that the Curt Smith team made five spades doubled at one table with the North-South cards, and also made five hearts doubled at the other table with the East-West cards. The hand cost my team 1,700 points.

U.N. Report Urges Control Of Superfirms

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. report issued on Sunday says the public no longer accepts the way giant multinational corporations, many American-owned, can use dollar power to escape effective government control.

The report suggested ways must be found to put reins on the super-firms to make them more accountable to governments in the countries where they operate. It was the first stage of a U.N. probe seeking to weigh the impact of the giant international businesses on world affairs.

Answers will be sought by a group of 20 experts from the United States and 18 other countries scheduled to start hearings on the activities of worldwide corporations in New York on Sept. 4.

The U.N. Secretariat prepared the report as background for the experts, appointed by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim following a 1972 resolution by the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

The United Nations was prompted to take up the super-firms issue by such controversies as those over U.S. private ownership of natural resources in Chile and Belgian private holdings in former African colonies.

The report said these disputes, among others, showed the general public no longer accepts "the degree of uncertainty that exists regarding the way in which the power of multinational corporations may be exercised and what the reactions and consequences are likely to be."

Concern over the power and influence of the big firms is greatest in the United States, the home base of most of them, the report added.

Headed by General Motors, eight of the largest 10 and 358 of the top 650 such corporations listed are American. Each of the top 10 in 1971 produced more than the gross national products of 80 small countries.

"Governments and social groups of the home countries — especially the United States — are increasingly concerned with the implications of the activities of multinational corporations," the report said.

"The key issue is not whether the home country should hamstring or do away with the corporations, but how their behavior may be influenced so as to correspond more closely to a set of enlightened national and international objectives."

In international relations, the U.N. report declared, the big firms, "can encroach at times upon national sovereignty by undermining the ability of nation states to pursue their national and international objectives."

It said the poorer countries especially are faced with a dilemma because they are tempted by the increased income, exports, jobs, technology and managerial know-how offered by big foreign firms.

"On the other hand," the report added, "multinational corporations can also undermine government priorities, fiscal and monetary policies and income distribution... and may have an unfavorable effect on the balance of payments."

Multinational firms played a major role in the dollar crises and any new monetary system must take into account their great financial strength, the report said.

The firms, however, have outstanding ability in combining resources with management skills and the task is to place this advantage at the service of mankind, the report said.

In some countries, it said, "The ostentatious living styles of foreign personnel as compared with those of domestic employees are a source both of envy and resentment.

The report found that many multinational firms now show great corporate and social responsibility and strive to maintain low profiles in foreign countries.

"But no matter how wisely the host and home countries deal with the multinational corporations and how socially responsible the behavior of the corporations may be," it added, "tensions and conflicts will inevitably arise and international machinery and procedures must be devised for dealing with them."

Two Americans, Sen. Jacob Javits, D-N.Y., and J. Irwin Miller, chairman of the Cummins Engine Co., are on the panel named by Waldheim.

revues that graced the Windmill stage.

"We hope we can raise the money," Polly said. "A lot of the old Windmill girls are doing well and some of them married well. We hope wealthy fans and some of the stage-door johnnies will help us out."

"I think we could put on a damn good show too. All the girls I have spoken too are very enthusiastic. We want to preserve the Windmill's name," she said.

The theater opened in 1932 offering nonstop burlesque and revues for about 12 hours a day. Performances continued during air raids, even as blitz bombs brought plaster down from the ceiling.

The theater adopted the motto "We never closed," which was

Widespread Flooding Sweeps Northern India and Bangladesh

NEW DELHI (AP) — Raging floods hit large areas of northern India and Bangladesh on Sunday, causing deaths and wide destruction of crops and villages.

Rivers flowing down the Himalayas were overflowing their banks from Kashmir in the northwest to Assam in eastern India following torrential rains and melting mountain snows.

There were reports of panic at Chandpur, 40 miles southeast of Dacca, where a salt factory collapsed into a river and floodwaters were eroding foundations of warehouses and other buildings.

Ferry landings connecting four districts in northeastern India with Bangladesh were washed away.

In Kashmir, the Jhelum River broke loose and flooded about 40 villages in the Srinagar Valley, officials reported. Boats cruised the area with supplies and other aid for marooned villagers.

First reports reaching New Delhi said 17 people were killed and 700,000 flooded or made homeless in India. Nearly 800 Indian villages have been marooned and 110,000 acres of cultivated land damaged, the reports said.

In Bangladesh, more than a million persons were reported affected in four districts of Comilla, Faridpur, Pabna and Mymensingh. Eight deaths were reported in Faridpur and about 200,000 people were said to have been left homeless in Faridpur and Pabna.

Army engineers were working around the clock 200 miles northeast of New Delhi trying to prevent water behind the Baigul earth dam from breaking loose.

The dam on a Ganges River tributary was breached in three places and water was seeping through. Engineers and soldiers were trying to reinforce it with a 10-foot high barrier.

Dozens of bulldozers were at work there and thousands of villagers along the river were evacuated.

Civilian authorities in India pressed army men and air force helicopters into service to rescue marooned villagers and cattle and provide temporary shelter and food.

In Punjab state, the flooded Ravi River overflowed into half a dozen villages. Residents were evacuated.

Reports from the Sikh holy city of Amritsar said 10,000 persons were forced from their homes by floodwaters.

In Bihar, a boat carrying 60 people sank in the flooded Ganges River near Patna and 35 persons were reported drowned.

Trike Modifications Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering safety standards for tricycles based on an engineering study which recommends modifying some of the trike's most characteristic features.

Gone, if the engineering report is followed, would be the rear step which is such a handy spot for giving playmates a ride.

The engineers also would eliminate wide, curved handlebars, adjustable seats and an unrestricted turning capacity.

All the measures were suggested to correct what researchers found to be the most dangerous feature of tricycles, instability.

"All units of traditional design are capable of being rolled over at realizable speeds and steering angles," said the study done for the Consumer Product Safety Commission by Calspan Corp.

The tricycle industry, while endorsing the principle of making the toy safer, is at the same time leery of trying to make tricycles spill-proof.

"I don't want to see the product get to the point where kids can't develop their skills," said Douglas Toms, who was formerly head of the National Highway Transportation Safety Agency and is now with AMF Corp.

Government studies have estimated 100,000 injuries a year are tricycle-related, although there is some dispute over how many of those injuries can be blamed on the trikes.

Safety commission monitoring of 119 selected hospital emergency rooms have shown tricycles to be the fifth most common toy implicated in injuries. The monitoring has yet to turn up a death, although the commission has noted reports of broken bones or serious cuts.

Of about 4,000 injuries in six months at the hospitals, nearly two-thirds were head or face injuries.

The government injury reports are liberally sprinkled with incidents of children injured while carrying a tricycle, standing on one to get a drink of water or getting pushed off by a playmate.

But of the injuries sustained while riding, the bulk occurred when the trike tipped over or children were riding double, using the platform above the rear axle.

The standards currently under review by the government and industry are months away from public action, said a safety commission spokesman.

Psychologist Questions 'Educational Toy' Value

CHICAGO (AP) — All those so-called "educational toys" for infants have little bearing on whether a baby grows up to be a genius or an imbecile, according to a psychologist.

Dr. David Elkind of the University of Rochester, N.Y., says that such toys are promoted with the implication "that the child's mental growth may be permanently stunted if his parents do not purchase the materials."

Studies on the development of infant intelligence show, however, that "parents who purchase these materials are almost sure to be wasting their money," Elkind added.

Writing in the August issue of American Journal of Diseases of Children, published by the American Medical Association, Elkind said babies can be entertained and amused by homemade toys, such as mobiles made of clothespins or by store-bought mobiles and rattles that they find enjoyable.

He said infants' toys should be chosen "on the basis of their safety and their immediate entertainment value, rather than in terms of their long-range educational benefit."

Elkind wrote that toys and other equipment said to promote infant intelligence actually stimulate "sensory-motor skills" which he said have little relation to intelligence in later life.

Bright children are likely to stay bright unless, for whatever reason, they engage in activities destructive to mental prowess," the psychologist wrote.

On the other hand, though, children with average ability "can by dint of hard work accomplish a good deal" even though they will never be geniuses, he added.

Ali Bhutto Is Chosen As Leader

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was elected to the key post of prime minister Sunday as Pakistan moved toward implementation of its new constitution.

Bhutto was elected by the National Assembly in Islamabad by a 108-28 vote over the opposition candidate, Shah Admad Noorani. Bhutto and Pakistan's new president, Fazal Elahie, will be sworn in when the constitution takes effect Aug. 14.

Under the constitution, adopted by the assembly last April after a series of compromises between Bhutto's ruling People's party and the opposition, the prime minister will be the most powerful government official. A National Assembly will be elected by popular vote and a Senate will provide equal representation for the nation's four provinces.

Shortage Hits Jungle

New Delhi, India (AP) — Tigers have been leaving their jungle homes to attack domestic animals in nearby villages because of a jungle food shortage, a symposium paper stated. The paper maintained that indiscriminate hunting by humans reduced the number of antelopes and other animals that tigers usually prey upon.

Reopening Of Windmill Sought

LONDON (AP) — Four former nude chorus girls with a soft spot for nostalgia are trying to revive a relic of London nightlife — the old Windmill Theater that defied Hitler's blitz and delighted GIs in World War II with nonstop burlesque.

For 32 years the Windmill offered burlesque, demure by modern standards, to its public until in 1964 it was converted into a movie theater showing sex films.

A long line of British comedians and actors, including Peter Sellers, got their start in show business there.

Four of its more recent girls, led by singer Polly Perkins, a Windmill nude when she was 15, are trying to raise enough money to buy out the lease from millionaire cinema owner Laurie Marsh.

Polly, now 28, Iris Chappell, Adele Cornell, and Pat Patterson want to bring back to the Windmill the old folies-type converted into "We never clothed."

But the nudity of those days was chaste compared to the permissive 1970s. Girls could pose in the buff only if they didn't move a muscle.

An estimated 10 million men and women patronized the theater until it became a cinema a decade ago. They went mostly to see the girls. The comics were regarded as fillers until the next set of legs appeared.

It was a recent Saturday afternoon and in the Alps Mountains which separate Austria from northern Italy. Vacationers by the thousands were pouring through the Brenner Pass.

They included Austrians and Germans headed for pleasure spots along the warm Adriatic and elsewhere in Italy, after a spell of cool and rainy weather in the north. They also included travelers from the south, headed for mountain resorts and points beyond.

The mass movement over freeway type highways as modern as Nebraska's Interstate 80 might have been routine except for one thing—there's a gap of about 45 kilometers, nearly 30 miles, in the freeway system, a gap involving village driving, stop lights, tunnels, curves, intersecting traffic and other impediments to speedy movement.

The result was a traffic jam of such proportions as to boggle the minds of four Nebraska tourists—this writer included—who were touring Europe in a go-big-red, German-made, rented Opel, registered in Denmark, picked up in Switzerland, driven through France, Italy, Austria and Germany before finally being delivered in Amsterdam.

Four make an ideal motoring group in virgin territory—one driver and three navigators, including one map reader and two sign watchers.

The northbound Nebraskans, although held to a stop-and-go crawl, including a stock-still, 15-minute stall in the middle of a half-mile long mountain tunnel, were doing better than southbounders, who were considerably more numerous.

Reaching the autostrada freeway after the 30-mile crawl, the Nebraskans found the oncoming lanes jammed, bumper to bumper, for a distance of perhaps 10 miles.

Drivers of cars, trucks and every conceivable type of tourist rig, going nowhere for the moment, were outside their machines. Men stripped to the waist to soak up the warm, late July sun, making the best of a bad scene.

As a test of patience, it eclipsed anything Nebraskans are likely ever to experience on Interstate 80 with the possible exception of a blizzard tieup, notwithstanding the occasional jams which develop in the wake of a Cornhusker football game in Lincoln Saturday afternoon, or rush-hour congestion on interstate routes in Omaha.

It was not the only traffic hangup encountered in two weeks of mostly smooth, comfortable and intensely enjoyable European motoring.

Manipulating even a compact auto on the streets of Rome or Florence can be traumatic. To escape the stress, momentarily, we employed a cabbie for a two-hour tour of Rome. His car was his livelihood and he obviously cherished it. During stops, he'd give a coat sleeve polish to the slightest spot on the cab's shiny surface. Moments later he'd plunge into Roman traffic as though intent on giving his machine a demolition derby finish.

On the autostrada, we found ourselves tooling along at 120 kilometers—about 75 miles per hour, only to be passed as though we were in low gear. We concluded that most Italian drivers were prepping for the Indy 500. Strangely, one rarely sees a local auto with as much as a fender dent. Another conclusion: Italian drivers are not inept.

Italian initiative was apparent in the industrial outskirts of Naples, where another freeway gap for those traveling between Rome and Pompeii causes a perpetual traffic jam. So permanent is the crawl that vendors ply the jam selling snacks and even fans to provide some relief from the heat and exhaust fumes.

A major help to the motorist traveling from one European country to another are the international road and traffic signs, which rely more on pictures and diagrams than words to carry their message.

Not the least graphic was the sign posted on a Rhine River dock which chanced to serve as the dead end of a city street in Rees, Germany. It simply pictured an auto plunging off the end of the pier into the water below.

If the flow of U. S. tourists is reversed—and gyrations of the dollar have suddenly made this country attractive to Europeans on a money exchange basis—the United States would do well to speed its conversion of traffic signs to the international system.

Ultimate adoption of the metric system likewise will please European visitors, who measure distance in kilometers and buy their gasoline by the liter.

Fires Engulf Forest Land

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP) — Twenty-two forest fires erupted in Corsica this weekend in what officials said was an arson and destruction campaign on this French island.

The fires were all around Ajaccio, the Corsican capital. Last month 240 forest fires were reported around Ajaccio.

State Youth Conference Opens On Festive Note

The opening session Sunday of the 13th Annual Nebraska Conference of Youth was festive as young people from across Nebraska came together for the two-and-a-half-day event at the Nebraska Center.

About 150 youths, mostly high-school age got to know each other a little better through a mini-decathlon, a pizza dinner, sensitivity session and films.

Things will be a bit more serious Monday morning during discussion of juvenile delinquency, featuring, among others, Judge W. W. Nuernberger of the Lancaster County Juvenile Court.

In the afternoon, the subject will shift to "How to Change

Your Life, Not Just Your Socks," a look at transactional analysis, a relatively new psychiatric concept of self-improvement.

At a Tuesday banquet closing the conference, Gov. J. James Exon will speak on "Youth Unlimited."

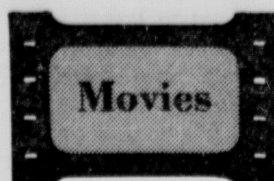

The purpose of the conference is to draw attitudes and ideas from young people about community participation and improvement.

The conference is sponsored by the Nebraska Council of Youth, the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth and the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

Release Urged For Prisoners

London (AP) — Amnesty International, an organization fighting for human rights, urged President Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay on Sunday to celebrate his inauguration by releasing political prisoners.

Stroessner, who is to be installed for a new term on Wednesday, has said his country holds no political prisoners.

Astronauts Explore Southwest

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts explored the American Southwest with space cameras Sunday and said they've gotten the hang of things enough to do more work.

During the photo run, astronauts Alan L. Bean, Jack R. Lousma and Dr. Owen K. Garriott, gathered data on California, Nevada, New Mexico and Texas. They took pictures of mountains, forest and land use, farming and geology.

"We're gonna whistle over this desert and grab some data on it," said Lousma as the spacecraft passed over the Smoke Creek Desert north of Reno, Nev. The 24-minute photo pass crossed over Harlingen, in South Texas, extended across the Gulf of Mexico and ended in South America.

The astronauts, who earlier in the mission had trouble keeping up with the schedule, asked for more work Sunday, their 16th day of a record 59-day space stay.

Later Sunday, Garriott was to aim two hand-held cameras at a new volcano rising out of the Pacific Ocean southeast of Japan.

Called Nishino-Shima, the undersea volcano is turning the nearby ocean yellow with eruptions of ashes and pumice. Hot gasses are creating water plumes yards high and sending a smoke column spiraling several hundred feet upward.

Officials said the earth resources photo passes will not be scheduled again for about three weeks. The orbit of the spacecraft does not carry it over desirable targets during periods when the lighting is right for photography, experts said.

Torrid Reds

Top Cards, 7-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Streak-hitting Pete Rose's second double of the game keyed a five-run second inning, propelling the torrid Cincinnati Reds to a 7-2 victory Sunday over the slumping St. Louis Cardinals.

Rose's second hit, a shot to right field following Bobby Tolman's leadoff double and two walks, helped knock out Tom Murphy, 2-6, as the Reds swept a three-game series.

The victory was the fifth straight for Cincinnati, eighth in nine games and 33rd in 43 contests since July 1. The loss was the seventh in a row for St. Louis, equalling the club's worst slump of the baseball season.

Veteran Lou Brock pounded Cincinnati starter Don Gullett's first pitch of the game for his sixth homer before the Reds came storming back.

Murphy's fourth walk loaded the bases following Rose's hit and Dan Driessen greeted reliever Al Hrbosky with a two-run single.

Rose's hits extended his hitting streak to 14 games and lifted his National League leading average to .346.

Pruitt's Score

Ties Rams, 21-21

Los Angeles (AP) — Rookie Greg Pruitt, the workhorse of Cleveland's late comeback, raced two yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown that gave the Browns a 21-21 tie with the Los Angeles Rams Saturday night in a National Football League exhibition game.

The Browns capitalized on Los Angeles blunders to gain possession of the ball and receive a second chance to score after they apparently had been stopped on a fourth-down pass batted down by Rams' rookie Cullen Bryant at the goal line.

Rookie Eddie McMillan was caught holding on the play, giving Cleveland a first down on the two-yard line. Pruitt then beat Bryant and Clark into the right corner of the end zone for the touchdown with 6:21 to play.

The 5-foot-10, 190-pound former Oklahoma runner carried the ball seven times for 20 yards and caught a nine-yard pass in the Browns' 54-yard, 13-play drive that started after Jim Romanoski recovered Larry McCutcheon's fumble.

Penal Complex Inmates Caught After Escape

Two escapees from the State Penal Complex have been apprehended.

The State Patrol said the pair was picked up early Sunday in the Lincoln area.

They were identified as Frederick Grant, 23, and Narcisse Merrick Jr., 31.

The patrol said the two escaped Saturday night. They were among a group of 15 inmates released to attend the Indian pow wow held at Sawyer-Snell park.

Grant, from Lincoln, was serving a five-year term for assault with intent to rob. Merrick, from Thurston County, was serving a term for burglary from Lancaster County.

Surprise Awaits Whoever Took Inedible Meat

Police believe they have a candidate or candidates for the most surprised thief or thieves in Nebraska.

Officers are investigating the theft of a number of 50 pound bags of inedible meat taken from a refrigerator truck parked at 56th and Cornhusker Saturday night.

Police said the meat was owned by the Perk Dog Food Co. of Chicago, Ill., and was enroute to a factory in Campville, Pa.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What bar opens but never shuts? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: In the 1930's there was a country store in New England that sold a cheddar cheese they claimed was aged in a manure pile. Of course under sanitary conditions. I have eaten this cheese, and found it delicious. Is the aging method fact or fiction? E. M. B., Philadelphia.

Fact: Of course, "under sanitary conditions." Horse manure is favored, as we get it.

Poll: Majority Favor Gas, Food Freeze

By LOUIS HARRIS

By 74 to 16% a sizable majority of the American people would favor a Phase 4 policy of "rolling back gasoline prices and freezing them." By 76-16%, a majority would also support a "roll-back of food prices and freeze."

It is evident that the prevailing mood of the public and the emerging policies in Washington are at considerable odds these days. Both the administration and the Democratic Congress are suggesting that roll-backs and freezes in the key areas of food and gasoline might well result in widespread meat shortages and no increase in short gasoline supplies. The public feels it is hurting in the prices being paid in both areas of consumer purchases and wants not to simply price controls but roll-backs.

Other key questions put to a nationwide cross-section of 1,497 households in mid-July yielded these results:

—By 63-16%, the American people favor a "roll-back and freeze of steel prices."

—By 53-37%, however, a majority support the Nixon Administration policy of not freezing wages.

—By 42-37%, the public is opposed to the policy of not freezing dividends.

—By a substantial 51-27%, the public also is against the policy of not freezing corporate profits.

These results shed much light on the disturbed mood of the American people on the subject of the economy. Generally, most people feel that wages have been restrained and therefore are not in need of a freeze.

On the other hand, people also believe that food and gasoline prices have soared and ought not only be frozen, but rolled back to some more acceptable levels. With second quarter corporate profits still at high rates, a majority would like to see some restraint put on corporate earnings.

Underlying this mood is a sense of inequity: that the economic policies the federal government has followed have benefited big business and the more privileged sectors of society, while the "small man" has suffered from ever-spiraling prices. The argument that a price roll-back or freeze might result in even greater shortages of agricultural products and energy appears to have fallen on deaf consumer ears.

The cross-section was asked: "President Nixon is now putting into effect his Phase 4 program of economic controls. For Phase 4, do you favor or oppose (READ LIST)?"

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

ANYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
